Naturalization petitions (second or final papers) were the formal applications submitted to any court by those alien citizens who had met the residency requirements and who had submitted first papers. Before 1906 (when the law changed) these petitions contained little personal information. After 1906 you might find the following: name, address, occupation, date of emigration, birthplace, port of debarkation, birth date or age, length of time in the U.S., date of intention (the first papers may accompany the final papers), name and age of spouse, names and ages of children, last foreign residence, port and mode of entry, name of ship, date of entry, names of witnesses, date of document, address of spouse, and photograph (after 1929)
